The residents of Medicine Hat, Dunmore and Maple Creek are petitioning to have their part of the Dominion constituency of Western Assiniboia, included in a new constituency of Southern Alberta. The Calgary Tribune supports the proposition and also thinks that with additional territory in the east, Alberta should be formed into three constituencies, the central, in which Calgary would be situated, taking in the country as far as High river to the south and to Battle river on the north.

J. A. BEAUCHAMP arrived from Lesser Slave lake on Friday with three dog trains, to return north with goods for B. B. Lariviere, trader, of Slave lake and Peace river. All the traders are sold out of goods, and about a month ago several dog trains were sent to the Landing for a fresh supply. There is no sickness amongst the people. In the first ballot box counted in the West Calgary recount between Lucas and Critchley, Judge Rouleau rejected as spoiled two ballots which had been marked for Critchley on the outside. Had these ballots been counted for Critchley he would have had a majority of one over Lucas. By their rejection both sides remain as they were. Other ballot boxes remain to be counted. It may be mentioned that in the recount for the St. Albert district the judge counted a ballot which had been marked on the outside, which was in the lake St. Ann ballot box.

Carrying coals to Newcastle is generally supposed to be the extreme of needless labor, and Newcastle is no more of a coal town than Edmonton is in proportion to its size, and yet coal is being carried or hauled to Edmonton from the mines on Egg lake Creek, north of the Sturgeon river. On Friday W. Craig brought in a four horse team load, a double sleigh box full, which must have been nearly two tons. It was purchased by John Cameron for use in his furnace for $3.00, and is said to be of superior quality to the Edmonton coal. The seam is over four feet thick and the coal comes out in very large pieces. It is loaded into sleighs at 7c for a double wagonbox full. Three mines are being operated this winter and the coal is being purchased at Fort Saskatchewan, St. Albert and in the farming settlement around the mine.

REV. A. LILGE, of the Moravian Colony of Brueckheim, or "Brethern's home," northeast of Fort Saskatchewan, was in town last week. The colony is situated in township 56 and the north half of township 55, range 20, and extends from the extreme northern point of the Beaver hills to the Saskatchewan river, taking in a great part of the course of the Beaver river. There are about twenty families residing in those townships and they now have sufficient food to last until spring. They are busy getting out logs and rails ready for next season's operations. The whole of the Moravians who came out from Russia in the spring are not yet living at Brueckheim. Some seventeen or eighteen families are located on the late Indian reserve on the South side near Edmonton. About eight of these families have some means, and purchased land on the reserve from the government, intending to remain there permanently. The rest of the families who are there are of the very poorest, who have been unable to go out to the colony, and are working around South Edmonton and amongst the farmers on the reserve, in order to provide themselves with food this winter and to get a start on farms of their own in the future. They are very industrious, whip saw lumber, cut logs or rails, and indeed do anything that they can get even the smallest pay for. Some of them have bought a quarter section together and divided it into 40 acre lots, with the intention of making a specialty of gardening next year. Mr. Lilge has heard that ten more families have sold out in Russia and will come to Edmonton in the spring. There are two or three hundred families of Moravians in the locality in Russia from which this colony comes.

H. L. BRICK, trader, arrived from Peace River on Friday with one dog train to take out a sorting up stock of goods, the brick trade of this winter having cleaned out some lines completely. Brick Bros. have trading posts at Vermillion and Fort St. John as well as at Shaftsbury. At Fort St. John five miners were working in the fall and took out about 15 ounces of gold. They made good pay while they were working but were not at it very long. They are trapping this winter. The names of four of them are Guttridge, McKoy, McKoy and Young. Mr. Brick had not heard from the trading post at Vermillion this winter. Last summer was very dry in Peace river and crops were poor. The fall was fine and the winter very fine also. Mild weather and scarcely any snow. Snow did not fall until the latter part of November. Fur is plentiful and the Indians are in good shape. At Lesser Slave lake crops were better than at Peace river. The Roman Catholic mission there had 900 bushels of potatoes. Mr. Lariviere had over 300 bushels, and nearly every one of the half breeds has a small patch of potatoes which yielded well. They are also commencing to grow wheat, oats and barley. They have a few cattle and horses and some hogs. The Roman Catholic mission has 65 head of cattle. Cabbages, turnips, beets, carrots, onions, and even tomatoes did well at Slave lake last summer.

THE C. P. R. PRESS.

The latest change in the management of the Winnipeg Nor'-Wester has been effected without even causing remark, and yet it is quite as important in some ways as the historic change in the management of the Free Press, when an employee of the C. P. R. offices in Montreal replaced W. F. Luxton, as editor. The Nor'-Wester was established as a protest against that change, with Mr. Luxton as editor, and was supported by the people of Manitoba and the Northwest as a weapon of defence—and offence—against the encroachments of the monopoly,—which it unquestionably was as long as Mr. Luxton remained in control of it. He made a red hot fight as long as he lasted and it became more necessary that he should be got rid of than when he was editor of the Free Press. How it was done has never transpired. A lesson had been learned from the effect of the sudden removal of Mr. Luxton from the Free Press and the work was now done more craftily but not less effectually. Mr. Luxton stepped out of his own accord and the paper ran on for a few weeks along the same lines as when he was in control. But not for long. The plot has developed and another employee of the C. P. R. offices in Montreal assumed editorial control. The Nor'-Wester is now the organ and creature of the C. P. R. just as the Free Press is, and the people of Manitoba are without a newspaper champion against monopoly. How much this means in cold cash to the people of Manitoba and the Northwest cannot be accurately told, but there can be no doubt that the absence of powerful and fearless criticism such as can be given by the leading newspaper of the leading city of the west, will be a great relief to the railway company and will be taken advantage of to the extent of putting on the screws in hundreds of ways that they would not have dared to do, in the face of such criticism. The dismissal of Mr. Luxton from the Free Press was bad strategy on the part of the C. P. R. and the establishment of the Nor'-Wester was a black eye for the monopoly. But now that the ownership of the Nor'-Wester by the C. P. R. has been clearly established it may be freely admitted that the railway is not only ahead but on top, and in good shape to hold the country down for another five years at least. With the Free Press, liberal, and the Nor'-Wester, conservative, both run by employees of the railway, it looks as though the company was ready to make terms with which ever party will pay it the biggest price. The papers can slang each other on the tariff, and the more they do it the better, it will serve to draw attention away from the questions of railway rates, railway development and railway competition.

TIMBER DUES.

The dues on timber required for settlers' use have always been felt to be a hardship, ever since they were first levied; and particularly so in this part of the country where the plea of the necessity of protecting the timber as an excuse for levying dues did not exist. Ten times as much timber, both spruce and poplar, goes to waste in this part of the country each year than all the settlers use. Why then should not the settler use it for nothing as well as nature destroy it for nothing? The fires which run in the spring and fall of dry seasons kill immense quantities of timber and each year afterwards a portion of the timber thus killed becomes useless through decay; when it is not entirely burned by a second fire, which this dead timber assists very materially to spread. Why should not the settler take for fire wood and fencing and building logs free of charge the poplar timber which having been killed by the fire becomes entirely useless through decay in a very few years? It seems a hardship that a man should have to pay dues on what is of no use to any one but himself; and the result is that green timber which otherwise would have stood for years is taken to serve the purpose which that already dead wood would have served almost equally as well. The dead wood rots and the green wood is destroyed as a result of the present regulations. What is universally true of poplar is true to a certain extent of spruce. In many places both near to and far away from settlements, small and large bodies of spruce have been killed by the fires of '89 and subsequent years. A great deal of this timber is still good for building logs and some of it is good for sawing. But as it is harder to saw than green timber and is not as valuable, and as the same dues have to be paid on it, it is allowed to rot on the ground, while the not too plentiful supply of green timber is being slashed right and left. This is not good policy from any point of view. The fire killed spruce does not rot away as quickly as poplar, but it soon checks and becomes worm eaten, so as to be useless for sawing. Once the spruce has been killed, it is plain that it is better to use it than to let it rot, and if it is better to use it, then all possible hindrance to its use should be removed, particularly a hindrance such as the charging of dues which directly tends to cause the manufacture of the living timber and the neglect of that which is dead. It seems impossible for the Ottawa authorities to understand that the conditions in different sections of the Northwest differ very greatly, and that what may be quite well adapted to one region may be altogether unadapted to another; and rather than allow a lack of uniformity to appear in their regulations they will perpetuate regulations which are a hardship and which have no excuse for their existence. If revenue is what is wanted there is no gain in asking dues for dead timber that people will allow to rot rather than pay dues on, and if the object is to protect the timber the levying of dues on dead and live alike simply means that a premium is put on the destruction of the most valuable—that is the living—timber.

PART of the object of General Booth's visit to the Northwest and British Columbia was to secure a tract of 10,000 acres of land on which to start a rescue farm. He was unable to secure such a tract in British Columbia, and Leo Gaetz, of Red Deer, called upon him in Calgary to see what could be done towards securing the farm and its probable expenditure of £5,000 a year for Red Deer. No decision has yet been announced. The BULLETIN wishes Gen. Booth and the Salvation army well in all their many schemes, but it is of the opinion that it would be very much better for this country to contribute £5,000 a year towards the support of the proposed rescue farm say in South Africa or Borneo than to allow one to be established in Alberta. The idea that the Canadian Northwest is a suitable dumping ground for the off scourings of the earth should be exploded as quickly as possible. This is a good country for good men, but it is no place at all for the tough or useless.

The next meeting of the society will take place about March 1st.

GENERAL NEWS.

Fifty thousand bushels of No. 1 hard Manitoba wheat in store at Buffalo has been sold to go back to Canada.

While addressing a political meeting at Glasgow, on Jan. 18th, the Duke of Argyll was stricken with apoplexy. He is in a critical condition.

The report sent out from Ottawa that Premier Borden is suffering from mental affliction is incorrect. Apart from his throat trouble he is otherwise well.

The Toronto Enquirer announces that the tour of a number of Dominion ministers in the western part of Ontario, which was so suddenly interrupted by the death of Sir John Thompson is to be resumed.

The plans and specifications for a wharf at Hudson, Lake Winnipeg, left Ottawa for Nelson on Jan. 12th. The tenders will be received up to February 1st. The coming estimate, it is said, will provide for another wharf at Gimli settlement. Last session $2,000 was voted for these wharves.

At the Ottawa printing bureau, work on voters' lists is being pushed. A circular has been sent by the secretary of state to all revising barristers whose lists are not yet received, urging them to use expedition in having the revised lists forwarded to the Queen's Printer by the 28th of February.

The Toronto Globe announces that it has leased a building on Richmond street west and ordered a complete outfit of new type-setting machines, and will begin the issue of the paper from the new quarters in a few days, and a new Potter press will be shipped to it at once. The World says the Globe has received an offer from the Mail to buy their plant, and negotiations are progressing favorably.

Casimir Perier, President of France, has resigned owing to the complications created by the resignation of the Dupuy ministry. The extremists are jubilant and ascribe the present crisis to the growth of socialism. The monarchists assert their claims and a revolution is feared. The people are greatly excited and the republicans denounce the course of the president in resigning. M. Brisson has failed to form a cabinet.

The provincial legislature of Quebec, concluded its business and prorogued on Jan. 14th, with the usual ceremony and speech from Lieutenant Governor Chapleau. The Montreal charter amendment bill, over which there was such a prolonged struggle, principally the clause to increase the borrowing power of Montreal, was killed by failure of the house to concur in the amendments of the legislative council. Hon. Mr. Casgrain's newspaper libel bill and Mr. Flynn's Magdalen Island bill were also killed.

An Ottawa despatch says: Dr. Montague has arranged here for the preparation and printing of campaign literature for the general elections. Ministers and conservative members however, still insist that there will be a session before the general elections. The idea is said to be that a session will be called say on the 14th of February or a week later, and that the general election will come off in June. To-day some thirty new printers were taken on at the bureau for printing the voters' lists. A circular has also been sent to all revising barristers asking them to rush forward their lists before the 28th of February, the final day arranged by statute for closing them.

The Toronto Globe says it is reported that an early dissolution is favored by the premier, Foster, Haggart and Tupper, and opposed by the French members of the cabinet. There are grounds for believing that the Quebec conservatives are in no hurry for the general elections. They are virtually without a leader—at least there is no name among the conservatives that can evoke the enthusiasm of the party throughout Quebec, and they believe that they can better their condition by a redistribution. Corruption is defeating its own end through election promises unfulfilled and can no longer be relied upon as confidently as formerly as a means of carrying the election. The indications are that the whole complicated machinery of privileged corruption will go out of order, and can no longer be controlled by the party in power for its own benefit.

The Commercial of Jan. 12th, reports all trade except the fuel trade dull in Winnipeg. Some coal is supplanting wood to some extent.

The bank of Montreal and the bank of Nova Scotia will open business in St. John's Newfoundland, in the place of the two broken banks of that city.

The Toronto Evening Telegram recently said: Negotiations are in progress that may end in honorable terms between the Empire and Mail and the Globe's occupation of the Mail building. It is said that the Mail and Empire people are willing that the paper should be known as the Empire-Mail. The government at Ottawa is said to be doing its best to further the union, and if carried, Bunting will be provided for by the government and Creighton will not suffer by the change. The Globe fire has created the opportunity for the union on fair terms that may never occur again. In the event of the plan being carried out the Globe would buy the Mail plant.

VANCOUVER PRICES.

Last winter it became the duty of the BULLETIN to point out certain inaccuracies in the market reports from Vancouver appearing in the Winnipeg Commercial, inaccuracies which were doing a great deal of damage to business in this part of the country. These were remedied to some extent, but not entirely, and no doubt the Commercial will take it in good part if the inaccuracies still existing are pointed out. For the past two months the Commercial's Vancouver correspondent has quoted Manitoba oats at $25 a ton and Edmonton district oats at $24, thereby creating the impression that Manitoba oats are worth on an average a dollar a ton more than Edmonton oats. This is notoriously not the fact. The BULLETIN cannot prove that it is not from the Commercial's quotations, but it can prove by a comparison between Edmonton prices and the Commercial's Vancouver quotations that the latter are not correct. Two qualities of oats have been shipped from Edmonton to the coast, namely those suitable for feed and those suitable for milling. Before any milling oats were shipped the quotation for Edmonton oats was the same, $24 per ton against $25 for Manitoba. Six cars of milling oats have since been shipped to the coast which cost at Edmonton from $1 to $2 a ton more than feed oats and it is fair to suppose must have been sold at something like that amount in advance of the price received for feed oats, and yet the Commercial's quotation stands just the same, $24 for Edmonton and $25 for Manitoba. A little explanation on this point or a change in quotations to correspond with the markets would be pleasing to the Commercial's subscribers in this part of the country and would increase the good opinion of the general public as to the reliability and therefore value of its market reports.

Tuberculosis exists to a large extent amongst the dairy cows of Winnipeg, and the authorities are awakening to the urgent necessity of stamping out the disease.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of A. M. Dalton, cashier of Harrison's Neepawa bank, has not yet been unwound, notwithstanding the thorough search instituted by the police and numerous friends of the missing man. Mr. Dalton's friends seem convinced that he has been the victim of foul play, and they are much alarmed.

A Quebec dispatch says: Rumors of a general election are being circulated about town. Special despatches from Ottawa received today seem to confirm the rumors. In the clubs and political circles the name of Lieutenant-Governor Chapleau is mentioned as a future member of the cabinet and leader in the Commons. The Government organs in Quebec unofficially give credit to the rumour.

Calgary Tribune: Mr. John A. Reid, formerly editor and manager of the Calgary Herald, and who recently acquired The Tribune and started to resuscitate the paper, has been compelled by ill health to abandon the task and sell his interest in the paper. Even in the short time which Mr. Reid was allowed to devote to the affairs of the paper, the business showed exceedingly satisfactory results and the aim of the fresh management will be to develop the possibilities of a sound newspaper enterprise in Central Alberta to their utmost. Mr. G. E. Grogan, on whom the conduct of the paper for the last month has practically devolved, will continue in its editorial management for the new proprietor.
